

Abstract of the Disclosure

A method of making an acetabular prosthesis includes acquiring a first set of data defining in three dimensions at least a portion of a bone of a patient. A second set of data is computed based upon the first set of data. The prosthesis is manufactured to include an acetabular cup and an attachment part extending therefrom. The manufacturing step includes the step of forming the attachment part based on the second set of data.